ANNIE MULLINS, BEAUTIFUL ARLINGTON MURDER VICTIM

A Study by Artist Newberry.

SLAIN TO HIDE SECRET

Annie Mullins Victim of Deliberate Plot to Get Her Out of Way, Now Theory of Detectives Working on Arlington Murder Mystery.

That pretty Annie Mullins was murdered to hide a secret is now declared by those who are seeking to solve the mystery of her brutal slaying in Squire's field, Arlington. The Arlington police believe she was the victim of one who had desperate reasons for getting her out of the way.

Among other theories being investigated is that of a possible secret marriage, in which Annie Mullins and a man far above her station in life may have figured.

Whoever fled in terror from Annie Mullins's prostrate form after he had put her out of the way was a man far removed in rank from the men with whom Annie Mullins associated, according to the present theory on which the police are working.

It is believed that he was a man of wealth or the scion of a prominent family, linked to the dead girl by some secret which drove him to lure her to the spot where she met death, after having carefully plotted her murder. The knife which almost severed Annie Mullins' head from her body was no ordinary blunt-edged pocket affair. It was as sharp as a razor, evidently prepared for the murderous use to which it was put.

Annie Mullins, it is declared, was not the victim of sudden violence, but of premeditated murder.

SAW COUPLE ENTER FIELD.

daughter of A. S. Hill, an Arlington carpenter, is believed to have seen Miss Mullins and the man who killed her walk through Squire's field on Friday night.

Miss Hill fixes the time that she saw the couple at about ten minutes past 10 o'clock.

This is her story as told to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter this afternoon:

"I was attending the party in the Baptist church on Friday night. Some of my friends started to go home about 10 o'clock and I went with them to the door. I stood on the porch watching them as they walked along.

"A man and a woman came along walking close together. They were at the corner of Pleasant street and Massachusetts avenue when I saw them first. The woman was walking on the man's left. They turned into the field, and while they didn't walk fast they kept going right along.

OF SAME HEIGHT.

"They were too far away from me to see them plainly, but I think that they were both about the same height. I went back into the church then and didn't think anything more about it."

The physicians on the autopsy are of the opinion that Miss Mullins died between 10 o'clock and midnight Friday.

Miss Hill is positive that it was not later than quarter past ten when she went back into the church, the entertainment

TAFT AND ANTI-TAFT EACH SURE OF VICTORY

LODGE AND CRANE FACTIONS SANGUINE AS VOTERS GO TO THE CAUCUSES.

"Nothing but Taft; he'll get twenty-five out of the thirty-two delegates from Massachusetts."—Former Congressman Samuel L. Powers, chairman of the Massachusetts Taft League.

"I can perceive nothing else than victory for our contention; twenty-eight of the thirty-two from Massachusetts will go to Chicago with open minds, uninstructed and unpledged."—General Edgar C. Champlin, chairman of the Massachusetts Committee for Uninstructed Delegates to the Republican National Convention.

With the 250,000 Republicans of Massachusetts on their way to afternoon and evening caucuses, which to-day choose delegates to the State Convention and to the District Conventions in fourteen Congressional districts, campaign managers in both the Taft and the Feld campaign bureaus made statements to the BOSTON AMERICAN late this afternoon, in which each saw nothing but overwhelming defeat for the other side and glorious victory for his own.

The first round is on in the battle for the twenty-eight district delegates and four delegates-at-large. Here are the official statements:

BY SAMUEL L. POWERS.

Everything is looking well. I have no reason to change my estimate that Taft will have at least twenty-five of the thirty-two delegates from Massachusetts.

I feel confident that the Sixth District (Gardner's), which has been the great fighting ground, and where the lines have been more closely drawn than elsewhere, will endorse the Taft candidacy. I was present at Beverly last night and I never saw greater enthusiasm for a candidate than was shown for Taft at the rallies. If we had another four weeks I feel confident that we would sweep the entire State.

The people are beginning to realize that the fight for "Uninstructed Delegates" is a fight against the policies of President Roosevelt, and that the expression "Uninstructed Delegate" is a mere subterfuge, to indorse the election of delegates who can be used for the nomination of a candidate who will be opposed to the policies of the present administration.

BY EDGAR R. CHAMPLIN.

The Massachusetts Committee for Uninstructed Delegates expects to name twenty-six of the twenty-eight Congressional district delegates. In this respect the situation remains unchanged. We have little to say. We haven't done much talking, anyhow, but have done more work.

We expect to send to Chicago men with open minds.

We do not claim that the personal preference of many of these men at the present time may not be Taft, but we do say that they are not "Taft or nothing" men.

They will not, in other words, be sent from Massachusetts to "boom Taft," but to take care of the Republican party and to nominate a man who can be elected.

"And we think we are going to name twenty-six out of the twenty-eight district delegates. We may carry the Sixth Congressional District, too."

CHILD SHOWS CONTINUED GAIN

Governor Guild continues to improve. According to the physicians, his strength holds out and he takes nourishment well. There is no longer grave anxiety about his condition among the members of the family. Dr. Winslow, however, maintains the conservative idea in his statements, and has not yet stated that all danger has passed.

This bulletin was issued by Dr. Winslow to-day, after his first visit to the Governor:

"Governor Guild shows continued, but moderate improvement."

Numbers of callers visit the house every day making inquiries as to the chief executive's condition, and leaving cards, on which they write messages of cheer. These are read to the Governor during the day when he appears to be resting comfortably.

CARMEN UNANIMOUS FOR NEW HAVEN STRIKE

DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE FIRM IN REFUSAL TO ACCEPT PIECE WORK SYSTEM.

The final vital conference between the machinists and Car Workers' Union officials and the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad over the "piece and bonus" scheme which the management has determined to put into effect to-morrow instead of the former method of payment has been held in New Haven, Ct.

Five thousand car workers are ready to drop their tools and go on strike the moment their union officials give them the word to do so. The union officials in the conference which was held to-day in New Haven reported to the officials of the railroad that unless the order to install the piece work system is at once revoked a general strike of the 5,000 employes will be ordered to-morrow.

Determined to Fight.

The answer of the railroad officials to the representatives of the Car Workers' Union officials will be read at a meeting of the representatives of all of the unions in Trades Council Hall, New Haven, to-night. A poll of the delegates representing these different unions was taken in New Haven to-day, and it showed that they were unanimously in favor of ordering a strike to-morrow unless the railroad rescinds its action.

That the railroad officials do not intend to do this and so regard that they are expecting a strike, the employes point out that the road has been discharging men right and left. The 1,200 men in the local shops here and the 3,500 in the shops at Readville are expecting the order to strike to come to-morrow. In the local shops the 400 men at the round house and repair shops would also be affected.

The local men are bitterly opposed to the proposed piecework payment plan as is complete accord with their national officials and will obey any orders.

The strongest Connecticut is expected to arrive at New Haven the moment a strike is declared, loaded with strike breakers. The employes do not think that the road can hire enough efficient men to break a strike, and they are confident of winning.

Thirty-five employes in the Spring street wheel shops in New Haven were discharged to-day. There are but three more men left at work there now, and they expect to go to-night.

Thirty women have been discharged from the accounting offices of the company at New Haven. One of these had been in the employ of the road for twenty-eight years. The policy of retrenchment has gone so far as to cut into the salaries of high-priced officials, it is said.

MUST FIND KNIFE TO SOLVE MYSTERY

It has been decided by Chief of Police Thomas O. D. Urquhart of Arlington that the knife with which Miss Annie Mullins was slain must be found. He regards it as the key now to her mysterious murderer. It is believed that the weapon is hidden not far from the scene of the crime.

Systematic search is to be made by the police, aided probably by employes of the Metropolitan Park Department. The most likely place for concealment is thought to be Alewife Brook. The advisability of attempting to drain the brook from the field to the railroad track, along the route which the slayer of Miss Mullins is supposed to have taken, is under consideration.

The knife is a vital missing link in the investigation of the crime. Were that in the possession of the police they would be able to answer many questions which are at present puzzling. A report that the knife had been found proved erroneous.

Prosecutor Consulted.

They do not believe that the murderer carried the knife very far when he fled from the scene. They believe that he had it in his hand as he ran, and took the first opportunity to hurl it to some place where it would not be easily found.

Llewlfa Brook is the most likely place in the vicinity for concealing a knife. This has already been searched as much as possible, but only very little of the ground could be gone over.

No trace has yet been found of the short, thick-set man who called on Miss Mullins at the home of Professor von Jagemann, No. 115 Walker street, Cambridge, on Friday, only a few hours before the pretty girl was slain. This man, they believe, is the murderer.

District Attorney John J. Higgins held a conference with Dr. Swan, the medical examiner who performed the autopsy, and State Officer Byrnes at his office in East Cambridge to-day. The District Attorney was informed of all the facts that the State police had been able to look up since they stepped into the case.

Seek Mysterious Wooer.

Dr. Swan presented his written report of the autopsy. The conference lasted over an hour, and at the conclusion State Officer Byrnes hurried to Arlington to see Chief Urquhart.

None of those present would divulge what had been talked over.

All of the young men who have been known to call on Miss Mullins are being looked up to-day to see if they can throw any light on the mystery. Photographs of some of them are said to be in the possession of the police.

One of these is said to be a young fireman, supposed to live in South Boston. According to Miss Annie McDermott, this young man recently escorted Miss Mullins to a supper.

Miss McDermott told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that on the evening previous Miss Mullins told her that she was going to the supper the next night. She was going with a friend that she didn't care for, she said. A day or two after that date Miss Mullins announced that she had been to the supper.

Didn't Like Her Escort.

"Miss Mullins told me that this man was very much in love with her, but that she didn't like him," Miss Mellermott said. After several hours' questioning the police became satisfied with the statements made by a Harvard man whose picture is said to have been found in Miss Mullins's room, and he was released. Extraordinary precautions were taken to pre-

TELLS OF WALK WITH GIRL ON FATAL NIGHT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 31.—The trial of Earl V. Jacques, the eighteen-year-old mill employe, who is accused of the murder of Miss Mary E. Eddy on a lonely road near Providence on the night of January 3 last, is in progress to-day before Judge Charles F. Stearns and a jury in Superior Court. Four witnesses were sworn at the opening session, among them Willam Straight, the last man known to have talked with Miss Eddy before she was killed.

Straight also worked in the mills and was well acquainted with Miss Eddy and Jacques. The trial adjourned to-day until noon when the young woman on the evening of the murder and of Straight's being subsequently a guest at the same house.

Straight was asked on cross-examination if he was not unfriendly toward the defendant.

"No," he replied, "I haven't a thing in the world against the boy."

The attorneys tried to show that on the day the murder was committed Straight and Jacques had quarreled over another young woman, Irene Davis. Miss Davis had asked Straight to take her that evening to a dance. Jacques, when he heard about it, said to Straight:

"So you're going to take her to a dance eh? I'll bet you won't. I'll see about it."

Straight insisted there had been no quarrel. Medical Examiner Jay Perkins and Dr. Barnard of Cedardale, who performed the autopsy on the body of Miss Eddy, both said death had resulted from a fractured skull caused by a blow on the forehead.

CHARGE NORTON WITH HOLDING BACK BIG SUMS

PORTLAND, Me., March 31.—That thousands of dollars were collected by Lucius B. Norton, president of the National Mercantile Company of Connecticut and Maine, which were never turned over to the customers, was the startling allegation made to-day in the Federal Court here by United States District Attorney Robinson.

Norton himself was arrested at Hartford last night on his arrival from Boston, charged with embezzlement and misappropriation. He is out on $10,000 bail. The hearing to-day was on the question of the dissolution of the injunction secured against Norton following the appointment of a receiver, which was secured in February by Theodore F. King, the fugitive Bancroft agent.

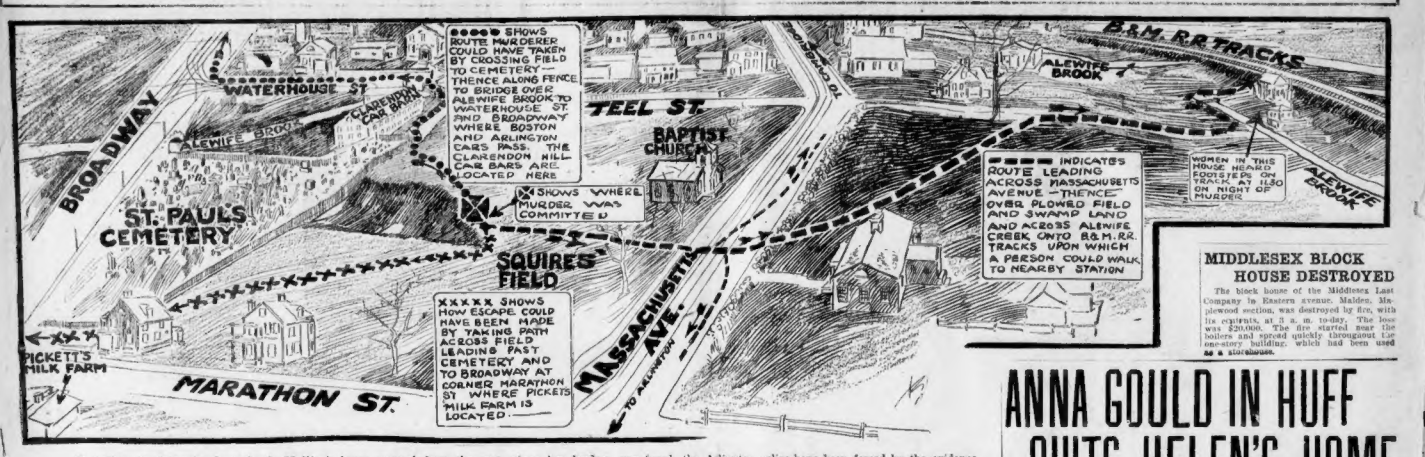
The plan assisted in promoting the National Mercantile, and it is said that $250,000 worth of goods remained unsold and unpaid for.

The $250,000 bond over its reported assets of $1,000,000 National have disappeared in four years. Receiver McKone for Connecticut is now receiving the bond because of the money. There was but one dollar in the treasury when the receiver was named, and this, according to Norton's own testimony, he left at Hartford.

"The only time Norton was ever known to pay over money to customers of his collection agency," asserted Attorney Robinson to-day, "was when he was threatened with suit or prosecution by lawyers for clients."

A large number of these creditors are now clamoring for their money. Norton lives in a house worth $60,00 at Hartford. It is in his wife's name, and certain plaintiffs are trying to recover by making Mrs. Norton a party to the suits.

HOW ANNIE MULLINS' SLAYER MAY HAVE ESCAPED



In trying to determine how Annie Mullins' slayer escaped from the spot where her body was found, the Arlington police have been forced by the evidence to the conviction that it was by one of the three routes shown in the accompanying diagram. At first they were convinced that he followed the route to the Boston & Maine tracks, but now they believe it is possible he took one of the other two routes shown.

Cambridge officers are conducting a search to-day for a mysterious young man, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, who last Friday night entered the drug store of Walter H. Dyson, No. 1972 Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge, at 10 o'clock and acted in a very peculiar manner. He was extremely nervous in his actions. He bought a soda and then hurried out without paying for it.

He returned in a few moments, paid for the soda, and then take dfor a box of cigarettes. He seized the package nervously, walked to the door and went out, failing to pay.

A second time he returned. "I don't know what the matter is with me to-night," he remarked to the clerk. He said he was in a hurry to get a car, paid for his cigarettes, and went out leaving a dime behind.

He was seen to stand on the corner and let all cars go by before getting aboard one bound in town.

MOST BAFFLING CRIME THE POLICE HAVE DEALT WITH

To-day the police while hopeful of new views which have come up admit that for the present the murder is a mystery that at the least can be called baffling.

No similar case has ever been brought to the attention of the Bay State police. No motive has been found, and no one who can throw the slightest ray of light on the dead woman's movements on the night of the crime has been located.

No act on the woman's part and no word from her relatives give the least clew to her slayer.

The police have been unable to find anybody who can say definitely that they saw the girl on her way to the place where she was found murdered, and outside of the few footprints in the neighborhood there is nothing to show whether the victim walked or rode to her death or was first slain and then carried there and left beside the pile of rubbish.

Conscious Till She Died.

The suicide theory is entirely eliminated by the absence of a weapon—but Dr. Durell, of Somerville, declares that the girl was conscious till the time of her death, which was shown by the fact that she swallowed much blood—and again the police say there was no sign of a struggle.

The doctor's statement indicates that she was not drugged. The police have investigated this and they declare that there is no trace of any drug being used.

The State police are called into the case to-day, but they, too, admit that they are all at sea, and at a conference early to-day with Chief Urquhart, Officer Hooley of Arlington and two Cambridge inspectors they were unable to suggest by which it is hoped the slayer may be run down.

Gems and Money Found.

The finding of Miss Mullins' watch, purse, money and other trinkets in her room not only eliminates the robbery theory, but also bears out the supposition that she went out hastily and without preparation to meet in the street the man who called a few minutes previously at the side door, and who was seen by Mrs. Von Jagemann.

This unknown caller was evidently familiar with the side entrance of the home of the Harvard professor, and he must have been very friendly with Miss Mullins in order to have induced her to go out so suddenly after she had told her mistress that she did not feel well enough to go to church such a short time before the visitor summoned her.

Was Slayer from St. John's?

It has been suggested that the mysterious visitor may have been a friend from her home in St. John's, N. F., some sweetheart of long standing whom here relatives in Boston knew nothing about.

It is thought by some that this man may have been rejected by Miss Mullins, and, unable to effect a reconciliation, he may have killed her in a sudden frenzy. Or it may have been some jealous person residing in or near Cambridge. Jealousy is considered by many to be even more plausible than any theory yet advanced.

Miss Mullins' family in St. John's do not know that she had any admirer there. Neither can they advance the slightest clew as to any possible enemy or inquisitive.

Her avowed intention to go to the Provinces next Summer is figured by not a few to have been sufficient cause to provoke a sensitive admirer whose attentions may have been reciprocated to his satisfaction.

One thing in particular the police are striving to do is get the friends of the murdered girl to talk. Up to date they have appeared most reticent, evidently fearing publicity, and the police are severely handicapped.

Inspectors Hooley and Nelian have gone over the efforts of Miss Mullins in her room at the Von Jogemann home. Some of the relatives of the girl from South Boston were present, but all the letters found were a few from the girl's mother in St. John's the present time the police have no way of telling just at what time the murder was committed, but according to the medical men it must have been some time between 11 and 1 o'clock.

The barking of Mr. Watson's dogs occurred shortly before 12, and he feels that the crime must have been committed at that time.

Weldon W. Seavey, senior partner of the Walter A. Seavey Provision Company at 1 Brattle square, Cambridge, yesterday declared that John L. Perkins, his clerk who underwent the third degree at the hands of Chief Urquhart, was the victim of a sad mistake, and the police are satisfied that he knows nothing whatever concerning the crime.

HUNDREDS SEARCH FOR SLAYER'S KNIFE

Hundreds of young searchers to-day waded along the banks of Alewife Brook, dragging the stream and parting the bushes in an effort to locate the knife with which Annie Mullins was killed or anything else tossed away by the murderer in his flight.

Sticks were used to make awkward grabs by which the bed of the brook could be raked over in places. Alewife Brook is not a clear stream and on the wet oozy bed evidence could be detected by a person standing on the bank.

It was thought also that the coat worn by the murderer, which must have been much blood-stained, would be thrown away somewhere along the route that he traveled.

Inspectors Follow Trail.

All of the officers at work on the case, Chief Urquhart and Inspector Hooley of Arlington, Chief Inspector Hurley and Inspector Nelian of Cambridge went over the scene of the crime to-day, making minute observations of the field and the plowed land, in which the tracks supposed to have been made by the murderer were discovered.

Another scrap of a letter was found and while it was very near the little knoll where Annie Mullins died, the police do not believe that there is much significance to it, although they will look it up.

Such of the letter as could be made out read:

"Nolan has got work at the Somerset. The other night we had out here Mr. Redfearn and another man—stranger—Massachusetts General Hospital—They had cake and coffee. George was out here about an hour. May—Miss Baldwin—going to m. car.

The letter is in the possession of Chief Urquhart.

While the State police have taken an interest in the case, and are at their office at work, Chief Urquhart has not asked for any assistance from Chief Whitney of the State force. "I think we can run our own case without the assistance of the State police," said the chief. "We are doing everything that can be done now and I don't see how they can help any."

HARVARD STUDENT WAS QUESTIONED IN MURDER CASE

Among the persons who were questioned by the police of Arlington in regard to acquaintance with Miss Annie Mullins is a Harvard student, who last night spent three

$4,253 MORE TAXES LAID ON EDDY ESTATE

CONCORD, N. H., March 31.—The Board of Assessors decided to-day that enough valuation was not placed upon some of the real and personal estate of Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder and head of the Christian Science Church and as a result of their meeting $4,253.46 additional taxes were levied upon her estate.

Of this sum $2,911.80 is upon the property held in trust for Mrs. Eddy by Henry M. Baker, Josiah E. Fernald and Archibald McLellan, making the total tax on this property $9,118.25, representing an increase in assessed valuation of $136,000. George J. Foster, who originally assessed the property, placed a valuation of $250,000 upon it.

The remainder of the increase is upon the funds held in trust by General Frank S. Streeter, Irving C. Tomlinson and Archibald McLellan for George W. Glover, Mrs. Eddy's son, and his family. This fund consists of bonds valued at $125,000 and is assessed upon a valuation of $58,333, making a tax of $1,341.60.

DRAG RIVER FOR BODY.

The Cambridge police are dragging the Charles River near the Harvard bridge to-day in an effort to locate the body of William O. Greening, a shriveler vests aid, of No. 80½ Magazine street, who is believed to have drowned himself.

necessary to have his story told.

It was said, however, that this young man's picture was found in the room occupied by Annie Mullins at the Von Jagemann house on Walker street, where she was employed.

A former employee of the girl said that Miss Mullins at one time announced that she was engaged to marry a Harvard man.

After considerable search Inspector Nelion of Cambridge and Inspector Hooley of Arlington located the man and asked him to come to the police station. He was taken in the back way to avoid the crowd which had gathered in front.

In a room on the second floor, where there was not the slightest danger that anyone, save the officials, could hear what he had to say, this young man was questioned. He answered the questions readily, and was to all appearances much surprised that he should be brought into the case.

After he had told his story, officers were sent out to verify his statements. They found that what he had told was correct, and on their return the young fellow was permitted to go. He was as carefully guarded thus as he was before.

It is said that he belongs to a fine Cambridge family, and his social position is such that the officers were not anxious to ask him to come to the station until they were certain that there were apparently good reasons why his story should be heard.

ANNA GOULD IN HUFF QUITS HELEN'S HOME

If you were a divorced woman, and wanted to marry a Prince, but would lose your fortune of $7,500,000 by so doing, which would you choose—

THE PRINCE,
OR $7,500,000?

NEW YORK, March 31.—Mme. Anna Gould, to win whom Helie de Talleyrand-Perigord, Prince de Sagan, crossed the Atlantic, has defied her family in their opposition, and in a huff has moved to the Hotel St. Regis.

Mme. Gould left the home of her sister, Mme. Helen Gould, at No. 572 Fifth avenue, and with her three boys—George, Boniface and Jay de Castellane—she will finish her stay in New York at this hotel.

This conclusion was reached after a conference at Miss Gould's home, at which Mme. Gould's brothers, George and Edwin Gould, were present.

It is believed that the intimatum of the Gould family was then delivered that the former Countess de Castellane, and that she determined to take matters into her own hand.

Can Tie Up Her Fortune.

Ever since the arrival of the Prince de Sagan in this country under an assumed name, it has been evident that the previous reports of an attachment between the two were well founded. George Gould was suspected in his opposition to the match by Miss Gould and the other brothers, and for the first few days of the Prince's visit in New York, his suit apparently made little progress.

With George, Edwin and Miss Helen Gould denying their consent to the marriage, Mme. Gould will find her fortune considerably diminished. According to the will of Jay Gould, the father, none of the heirs can marry without the sanction of the executors, who are George, Edwin, Howard and Miss Helen.

In various suits against Mme. Gould when she was Countess De Castellane it was brought out that her share of the Jay Gould estate was $15,000,000 and that the income had averaged $600,000 a year.

If she persists in marrying the Prince De Sagan without the consent of three of the executors of the will she will lose more than $7,500,000 in a lump sum and $300,000 a year will be cut off her income. The executors provided by Jay Gould are George J. Gould, Edwin Gould, Howard Gould and Miss Helen Gould.

George Gould's position is definitely known to be unchangeably opposed to the match. Howard Gould is having matrimonial troubles of his own and is paying little attention to the rest of the family. Edwin Gould is the hardest working member of the family and has so far maintained absolute silence.

It would seem that the late Jay Gould foresaw the possibility of one or more of his daughters contracting a foreign marriage. He declares specifically in his will that the daughter's beneficial interest in all trusts is for her sole and separate use, "entirely free from any right, estate or control of her husband, and her separate receipt and acceptances shall be sufficient, without the assent or joinder of her husband."

This was the restriction which Count Boni de Castellane was forced to accept, much to the sorrow of his fortune-hunting spirit.

130 HORSES IN PERIL IN $125,000 FIRE

CALL ENTIRE DEPARTMENT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 31.—One fireman had a narrow escape from being decapitated by falling glass, the Brockett brick business block at No. 23 Eddy street was gutted and a conflagration was threatened by a $125,000 blaze, which broke out in a prominent section of the Providence business district early to-day. When the flames assumed dangerous proportions 130 horses were liberated and allowed to run wild from the stables of Billings Brothers in the rear of the burned block, and three alarms were turned in, summoning all of the Providence fire fighting force to protect adjacent property.

The fire started at 4 a. m. in the rear of the fourth floor and went up and down the elevator shaft. It spread throughout Tobias Burke's wholesale and retail liquor store. The discovery was made by a passerby, who heard the automatic gongs ringing upstairs. The building was doomed before the firemen arrived.

With flames bursting from windows at the front and rear and on both sides, it seemed almost certain at 5 o'clock that the fire would get beyond control and communicate with adjoining business places, when the second and third alarms were sounded. The Billings stables caught fire several times, and, being filled with many tons of hay and straw, the firemen and stable employes decided to liberate the horses. They were all captured in the street.

The second floor of the burned block was occupied as a machine shop, conducted by C. E. Angell. The fourth and fifth floors were occupied by a number of jewelry and glassware establishments. All of the occupants had large signs on the front of the block. One by one the signs caught fire and dropped to the street, grazing the heads of firemen and spectators within the fire lines, and they were accompanied by showers of falling glass which were equally dangerous.

Face Cut by Broken Glass.

Owen MacElroy, a fireman of Hook and Ladder 1, was caught beneath one shower of glass and his face was frightfully cut. One gash extended almost from ear to ear. His helmet probably saved him from being killed. MacElroy was carried away by fellow-firemen and had his wounds dressed by a physician. He is not dangerously hurt.

The fire was under control by 7 o'clock.

BUT ONE LIST OF DELEGATES IS PLEDGED

Democratic Convention Nominees Uninstructed on Presidency.

But one set of pledged delegates to the Democratic State and Congressional District Conventions were filed with the secretary of the Democratic City Committee to-day when the hour for filing arrived. These were pledged to John A. Johnson of Minnesota for President, and were filed by Representative William H. O'Brien of Ward 16, the original Johnson man of the Legislature. The papers from all the other wards were unpledged.

Two other sets of papers were filed from Ward 16, both by the Fitzgerald-McDonald-Comfrey faction. One will be withdrawn. The contest in this ward is the only one which has developed to date, but the time for filing does not expire until 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

It was the decision of Secretary Daniel J. McDonald of the City Committee that the ward organizations should have first place on the ballot in the primaries, regardless of who filed first. The filing was at the old headquarters, No. 222 Washington street.

Alderman "Jim" Curley was the first to file, and his ticket will be the only one from Ward 17. "Tom" Curley announcing that he was going to reserve his strength for the fight next Fall.

PURCHASE OF PLANT STANDS

Judge Rugg of the Supreme Court has sustained the demurrer of the Revere Water Company and ordered that the bill against the company and against the Town of Revere be dismissed.

A number of citizens and property holders of Revere brought a petition, declaring that the purchase of the water plant by the Town of Revere was unfair and that the rights of the citizens were not properly protected.

The petitioners asked that the contract to purchase the plant be cancelled and the town water bonds be cancelled.

Girl and Pastor Whose Letters Cost Him Pulpit

Because of Rev. Frank C. Brown's infatuation for Miss Clara Raymond, a member of his flock, the South Norwalk Baptist Conference burned his ordination papers.

UNFROCKED FOR WRITING GIRL LOVE LETTERS

Pastor's Ordination Papers Burned While He Lies Probably Dying.

HE HAD ADMITTED GUILT

SOUTH NORWALK, Ct., March 31.—While the Rev. Frank C. Brown lay probably dying of brain fever in the parsonage of the little Rowaytown church that he had disgraced, the Fairfield County Baptist Conference yesterday tore up his ordination papers and burned them in sight of his brother ministers.

The love letters Brown had written to Clara Raymond, the pretty Sunday School teacher in his church, were not read to the conference. Instead the Rev. J. D. Richardson, the president, announced that a written admission of Brown's guilt and of his scandalous infatuation for the young girl had come in time to spare the reading. All the pastors looked relieved, for it is known that the letters were unfit for publication and would surely have revived the whole odious affair.

In his confession Brown admitted that he had wronged the girl. He said he had no excuse to offer, but he begged the prayers of his former brethren of the pulpit and asked them to urge former Superintendative Raymond, the father of the young woman, and his entire family, to try to forgive his offence against the sanctity of their home.

When the conference, held at South Norwalk, had formally withdrawn the hand of fellowship from Brown, the members began seeking for a pastor to fill the pulpit he resigned immediately upon the disclosures of his intrigue. Until Brown dies or recovers, however, he will probably be allowed to use the parsonage as a home, though there is a widespread feeling among the Rowayton parishioners that he should be ousted at once. This might be done, in spite of his serious condition, but for the fact that his wife has also prostrated there. She has the sympathy of the entire community, and is being nursed by women members of her recreant husband's former flock.

WIFE DYING, GRIEF DRIVES HIM TO SUICIDE

'I'LL GO TO GREET YOU IN THE NEXT WORLD,' RICH PUBLISHER CRIES—TAKES GAS.

Edwin Brockney Hall, the wealthy Boston man and former publisher connected with the firm of the Hall & Locke Company, with offices at No. 30 East Twenty-fifth street, New York, unable to bear the thought of the grave taking his wife from him, is dying in New York. He inhaled illuminating gas, and at the J. Hood Wright Hospital in New York the physicians say that he will be successful.

After quitting the publishing business Mr. Hall became the president of the Royal Electric Company of New York, with offices at No. 110 Broadway. His wife is one of the Harper family of Boylston street, this city.

They lived in stylish apartments in New York city, but when Mr. Hall learned that his wife was a victim of cancer he removed with her to apartments in Elsmere Court, Ninety-third street and Riverside drive. There the most famous specialists in New York were brought to treat and, if possible, cure the ailing woman.

No Joy in Life Without Her.

When Mr. Hall was told the other day by the doctors that their efforts were in vain and that his wife must surely die he was broken-hearted. "If she dies I have nothing to live for," he cried.

"I will meet her beyond the grave," he said to have declared to others.

Then, with his mind fully made up, he wrote a long letter to his wife, to be read to her after he had passed away.

"I don't want to live after you are gone, beloved," is the purport of this piteous message. "So I'll go first to be ready to meet you over there."

He made his preparations carefully and well. The man who had offered his entire fortune to Drs. Howell, Morrison and several others if they could save his beloved wife determined that he would die.

Lies Down to Die.

In the room adjoining that in which his wife lay breathing her last he connected a water bottle with the gas jet by a long rubber tube, then he placed the open end of the bag over his face and lay down to breathe into his body the fumes that meant death.

Early yesterday morning, Mr. Harper, a relative of the dying woman, smelled the strong fumes of escaping gas. He searched the apartments over and finally remembering the strange actions of Mr. Hall and his threats of self-destruction broke into his bedroom. There on the bed lay the unconscious form of the man who was giving up his life that he might be the first to greet his wife when she came through the portals of death.

The sick and dying woman was kept in ignorance of the fact, and the dying husband rushed to the Wright Hospital where everything that science could suggest was done to restore him, but in vain. Then, with his mind fully made up, he refused to eat the doctors and nurses are waiting for the end.

1910 VISIT TO FATHERLAND

At the annual meeting for the election of officers of the German Veterans' Association Prince Henry, held in Kossuth Hall, Tremont street, Roxbury, last evening, the following were elected: Captain, Nathan B. Rasch; lieutenant, Carl Zahr; secretary, Theodore Koppman; corresponding secretary, Eugene Hellriegel; financial secretary, John Kline; treasurer, Gustavus Schmitz; financial committee, A. Baus, G. Solomon, B. Kleberg.

The association is composed of former members of the German army, residing in this country.

It was voted that the entire company, consisting of 125 members, go in a body to Germany in 1910 to the fortieth anniversary of the Franco-Prussian War.

BARRYMORE ACTS IN AID OF CHILDREN

HASKELL-EMERY DIVORCE SUITS HEARD TO-DAY

Action Also Taken for $10,000 in Charge of Alienating Affections.

The divorce suits of Samuel C. L. Haskell of Medford and Winthrop and Mrs. Elizabeth G. Emery, and the action of Mrs. Emery against Mrs. Mineola Haskell for $10,000 on a charge of alienating her husband's affections, began to-day in the Suffolk County Divorce Court.

Attorneys McConnell, Magenis & McConnell appear for Mr. Haskell and Mrs. Emery, while Judge William Preble of Charlestown represent both Mrs. Haskell and Howard B. Emery.

For years the Haskell and Emery families were closest of friends. The Haskells lived in their splendid estate in Medford while the Emerys lived in a pretty and happy home in the South End of Boston. They met years ago in Winthrop during the Summer season, and after first meeting were more and more in each others' company. This was about six years ago.

Moved in Best Society.

The intimacy of the Summer months came to be more and more continued during the Winter social season, and the Emerys and the Haskells became closer and closer friends. Mr. Emery is a well known electrical engineer for the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, and his position was such that his family moved in the best of society in the well-known Summer resort.

Mr. Haskell, besides being one of the most principal real estate owners in Medford, is prominent in the Elks and Masons of that city, the Shriners of Boston, and he is a member of the Winthrop Yacht Club and a most prudelent yachtsman. Both of the women are rarely beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery were married April 1, 1897, while the Haskells were married some time before that.

Shadows Darken Home.

It was not until about twenty months ago, or thereabouts, that the first shadows fell to darken the formerly happy homes. Mrs. Emery went on a visit to friends in Washington city. She remained away for several weeks, and when she got home rumors that busy gossips had been circulating came to her ears. At first she paid little attention to them, but the rumors continued, and at last she listened.

Then she remembered how frequently Mrs. Haskell had visited at her home and she decided to take less confidence in her former friend that she had in the past. It has been said that she hired private detectives to do the work for her and that as the result of their work suspicions became confirmed and that she determined to bring suit against her former intimate friend on a charge of disrupting her home.

"She Cannot Hurt Me."

"I don't care what Mrs. Emery does; she cannot hurt me," Mrs. Haskell said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter when the fact that the suits had been filed was first made public.

Before her marriage Mrs. Mineola Haskell, who was Miss Mineola Spenserly, was a dashing society belle of Roxbury. She is fully six feet in height and a splendid type of a brunette.

In the suit for the alienation of Mr. Emery's affections Mrs. Emery has attached the fortune which Mrs. Haskell has on deposit in the Provident Institution for Savings in Boston and the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston. In this technical way both of the well-known financial institutions are made co-defendants. Since the suits were filed Mrs. Emery and Mrs. Haskell have separated from their husbands.

Mrs. Emery is a most fascinating woman. She was born in Boston, but both of her parents were full-blooded Spaniards, and she has that wondrous wealth of the typical Spanish beauty. She is tall, slender, with lustrous black hair and dark and flashing eyes.

TWO PRINCIPALS IN MARITAL TANGLE

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Emery (in small picture), who is suing for divorce, has also taken action against Mrs. Mineola Haskell (in the larger picture), for $10,000 on the charge of alienating the affections of her husband.

MEXICAN BISHOP DIES.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, March 31.—Most Rev. Prospero Marie Alarcon y Sanchez de la Barquera, archbishop and head of the Roman Catholic Church in Mexico, died to-day. He was eighty years old.

SUICIDE IN HOTEL.

PATERSON, March 31.—By inhaling gas Henry Giebelhousen, the police say, committed suicide in the Bellevue Hotel, in Market street. He was married, but had no children. His friends cannot explain his desire to die.

CHILDREN AT POPE'S MASS

Special Cable to the Hearst News Service.

ROME, March 31.—Twelve thousand children were present in the Basilica of St. Peter's Cathedral to-day when His Holiness Pope Pius said mass. The cathedral was closed to the public. The services were exclusively for children.

BOMB-HURLER ESCAPED POLICE, SAYS BERKMAN

ANARCHISTS' LEADER DECLARES COHEN IS NOT AUTHOR OF SATURDAY'S OUTRAGE.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Alexander Berkman, head of the Anarchists Federation of America, declared to-day that the man who threw the bomb in Union square has escaped, that Selig Cohen, alias Silverstein, is not the man, and that the latter, should he recover from his injuries, will be defended by the Anarchist Federation on this ground.

Berkman accused the police of wilfully and maliciously falsifying the whole case. He declares that they know Silverstein is not the man who hurled the bomb, but that they believed he was going to die, and therefore, gave out an alleged confession from him.

"I can state positively," said Berkman to an AMERICAN reporter to-day, "that before he was to appear in the Tombs court for arraignment, that the man who really threw the bomb in Union square has escaped. Silverstein is not the man.

Declares Police Lied.

"The statement of the police, in which Silverstein is made to admit that he threw the bomb is also false. The police gave out such statements because they believed that Silverstein was going to die, and that therefore he would be unable to refute them.

"When I went to Bellevue Hospital to try to identify Silverstein, at the request of the police, I met at his bedside his sister, Miss Sadie Cohen. Detective Wallisky took me to the hospital, and was also there during what occurred. I knew her, because I had met her about three weeks ago.

"Miss Cohen immediately made the statement to me after I had spoken to her: 'My brother has declared to me that he did not throw the bomb. He admits that he made it, but he says he did not throw it.'

"The sister said to me: 'My brother told me that he had seen you and heard your lectures, but he did not know you.'

"That establishes conclusively that I did not know the man.

No Plot to Kill the Police.

"There was no plot to kill the police, for if there had been the detectives would never be able to foretell it out.

"I do not want to appear to defy the police. I have never defied them but their manufactured evidence.

"We will help this man, as we help every member of the Anarchistic federation in trouble. I have inquired at the hospital to see if he is in condition to receive visits and delicacies. When he is better he will look after his comfort, and if he comes to trial we will defend him."

SAYS BOY DREW KNIFE ACROSS HER THROAT

Woman Who Sheltered Him for Years Declares O'Halloran Threatened Her Life.

That Francis O'Halloran, sixteen years old, who lives on Harrison avenue, Boston, drew the blunt edge of a carving knife across her throat and threatened her life, Mrs. Katherine Clifford, of No. 48 Butler street, Dorchester, testified to-day before Judge Churchill in the Dorchester Court. The young man was sent to Concord Reformatory.

O'Halloran was taken into the family of Mrs. Clifford when he was about six months old, after the death of his mother. He remained at the Clifford home until he was fourteen years old. Since then he has been living with his father on Harrison avenue.

A week ago Saturday night he went out to the Clifford home, according to testimony to-day, pulled down all the curtains in the kitchen, and picked up the knife and drew the blunt edge across the throat of his benefactor. He cried out that was tired of living and was going to kill Mrs. Clifford and himself.

CLOWRY VISIT SPREADS PANIC

The arrival of Colonel Robert C. Clowry, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who is expected in Boston at 9 o'clock to-night, is awaited with great interest and some apprehension by the local officials of that company.

All sorts of rumors as to the purpose of Colonel Clowry's visit are afloat, although no positive statement could be secured at the offices of the Western Union to-day. It is said that Colonel Clowry is coming here in pursuance of a policy of retrenchment on the part of the directors of the company. Salary cut downs are expected to follow. The cut downs are not expected in the salaries of the operators or the rank and file of the employes but among the higher officials of the company.

DEATH AFTER HEADACHE CURE

NORTH ATTLEBORO, March 31.—The sudden death of Attorney William H. Pond from illness resulting after taking a headache powder in Boston has caused intense sorrow here. Mr. Pond, who was familiarly known as "Billy" to about every one in the Attlebores, went to Boston last Friday, was stricken with severe headache and took a headache powder. On the way back in the train the next day he was seized with acute illness of an apoplectic form and died yesterday.

How to Get Rid of Fat.

Send For a Free Trial Box. It May Save Your Life.

A quick, harmless reducer of fat, called Reogo, has come into popular use which far eclipses any method or treatment heretofore used.

Death From "Fatty Heart" Comes At The Most Unexpected Moment.

Reogo is perfectly harmless, pleasant to take, and it is chewed like candy. It attacks abnormal tissue with unerring accuracy, and causes a gradual, harmless but effective reduction in weight, and without leaving wrinkles which are nearly always present after taking drugs and other dangerous materials commonly called "anti-fats."

There is nothing "just as good" as Reogo. Free sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail prepaid, by the Reogo Co., 32142 Reogo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit; no free packages at drug stores. For sale in Boston by James Pugg Co., Five Storey, Henry Siegel Co., Washington and Essex Sts.

Today's Lesson in The American's Course for Salespeople

No. 16

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

There is a quotation, not a new one, but one worth remembering. It reads: "The persons who never do more than they are paid for rarely get paid for more than they do."

DO NOT BE AFRAID of doing more than is expected of you.

Just one instance of a young man who was not afraid of a little extra exertion. He was in charge of the stock in the women's garment department. He would have drawn his salary every week if he did nothing more than the routine work in the stock room.

BUT HE DID MORE. He watched the stock carefully as it went down on the floor and kept memoranda as to quantity and reserve in addition to the regular records on the stock book.

The buyer found that the young man always knew what was what. The salespeople and floor men became dependent on him and he never failed to know just what was wanted about a single garment or a certain lot.

In a short time a change came in the department and at one jump he was put in charge of it. He increased the business materially and in ten years was a junior member of the firm.

HIS SUCCESS STARTED when he was a stock boy who was not afraid to do more than was required of him.

Next Lesson in Thursday's American.

Cut out these "lessons." Every Sunday we print a review and self-examination. A good plan is to clip the lessons and reviews out and paste them in a scrapbook. You will then have a manual on salesmanship that you could not buy for a good many dollars. It may be worth hundreds to you in increased salary.

SEE VICTORY IN VOTE FOR LEAGUE MAN

THOMASTON, Me., March 31.—Dr. G. Langtry Crockett, running on an Independence League ticket for School Committeeman, led both the Republican and Democratic candidates on the first ballot.

He was only defeated by the withdrawal of the Democratic candidate, Edward G. Weston. The Republican candidate, Charles A. Benner, succeeded in getting enough votes to overcome Dr. Crockett's lead and had a majority of three on the final ballot.

Dr. Crockett regards his vote as a virtual victory, it being the first time that the Independence League has contested a town office.

BOSTON & MAINE EMPLOYES WILL NOT ACCEPT CUT

President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine Railroad to-day expects to receive the answer of the company's employes on the road's proposition for a wage cut. This answer, it is understood, will be a flat refusal to accept even a temporary cut. It is said that the men recognize the fairness of President Tuttle, but believe that an acceptance of the Boston & Maine proposition would be a precedent for a similar reduction by every other railroad in the country.

Sentiment is against the cut. The only factor in favor of acceptance is the desire of the men to oblige President Tuttle.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was in conference during a greater part of yesterday. International representatives were present. This morning International officers of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railroad Conductors arrive in Boston for conference.

CRAP SHOOTERS FINED $5 EACH

Michael Burns, John Burns, Thomas O'Brien, James O'Brien, Fred Smith and Fred Lutz, East Dedham youths, all over eighteen years of age, were fined $5 each by Judge Emery Grover in the Dedham District Court to-day as the result of a raid by officers last Sunday morning, when a number of boys were caught shooting craps in an empty building. Yesterday four boys caught in the same party were before the court.

ROBBED IN HIS SLEEP.

NEW PLAYS AT LOCAL HOUSES WIN APPLAUSE

"The Right of Way" at the Hollis Street and "Top o' the World" at Majestic Score.

GAY EXTRAVAGANZA GOOD

Eugene W. Presbrey's dramatization of Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Right of Way," at the Hollis Street Theatre, affords one of the best specimens of the difficult work that it has been the pleasure of Bostonians to witness. Theodore Roberts and Guy Standing share honors in the piece. Mr. Presbrey has retained all the charm, the romance and the human interest of the story, and has been wonderfully successful in retaining its subtle atmosphere. The company is excellent.

"The Top o' th' World," which opened at the Majestic last night, is a flighty, gay extravaganza, which has already "made good" with Boston theatre-goers. The three carries its own climate with it. The "collie" ballet dance by six dancing girls and six many well-groomed dogs, is one of the hits. The engagement s for two weeks.

"A Midnight Bell," at Keith's Scollay Square Theatre, affords plenty of fun in the familiar scenes of the boudoir, the consultation, the sewing circle and the choir rehearsal. Mr. Hoyt drew his plot very skilfully.

Grand Opera at Orpheum.

Grand opera at the Orpheum this week by making a decided hit. The Bonnay company presents a clever bill of typical gypsy aspect. "Love's Young Dream" is full of fun, and the other numbers are good. Kellar is showing many new feats of magic at the Globe Theatre. He has been on the boards forty-seven years, but still he is new. The "Levitation of Princess Karnac" is a feature.

At Keith's this week everybody on the bill wins favor. Blanche Ring is especially good. But there are many others —so many that last night's audience found it hard to pick out the best.

"The Man of the Hour."

"The Man of the Hour" has passed its seventy-fifth milestone and is well on its way toward the one-hundredth mark at the Tremont Theatre.

Ther is a laugh every minute for those who like gingery melodrama in "Panhandle Pete" at the Grand Opera House. The piece is somewhat different from the ordinary melodrama. Pretty girls and catchy songs are a feature.

"The Golden Crook" company, at the Lyceum Theatre, has an unusual number of shapely women, elegantly costumed.

The big burlesque organization at the Columbia Theatre is sure to prove a popular drawing card. There isn't a dull moment during the evening.

"Sign of the Cross."

This is Ernest Barrymore's final week at the Colonial Theatre in the title role of the engagement opened auspiciously.

Rose Stahl and her company are still drawing well at the Park Theatre.

"Her Double Life," at the Bowdoin Square Theatre, is a good show.

THREE FINED UNDER PURE FOOD LAW

Christos Lykos, who keeps a fruit stand at Park Street Church, was fined $25 in Boston Municipal Court on Saturday for adulterated maple syrup. Israel Kasoski of No. 280 Shawmut avenue, and George Milliken of No. 381 Shawmut avenue, provision dealers, were fined $25 each for selling Hamburg steak with an acid preservative.

ROSE STAHL NOW LOCAL FAVORITE

Rose Stahl apparently may count her self among the list of Boston favorites. This is her first engagement here as a star, but the audience at the Park Theatre last evening was so demonstrative that there could be no question of its approval. Certainly "The Chorus Lady" is one of the best liked works of the season. The wide range of impersonation certainly proves the versatility of Miss Stahl and her personal success makes "The Chorus Lady" as strong a magnet here as it was in New York.

WAGES CUT FOR 4500

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 31.—Notices of wage reductions were posted to-day in our more big Rhode Island mills. In the thread mills of the J. & P. Coates Company, Limited, at Pawtucket, where 2,500 employes secured an advance of ten per cent. in wages less than a year ago, the amount of the proposed reduction is not announced, but the men expect that it will be ten per cent.

At Warren, R. I., a ten per cent. reduction has been announced in the Warren Manufacturing Company, the Cutler Manufacturing Company and the Stafford mills. Two thousand men are affected.

In both places the reductions will go into effect April 13.

KAISER NOW ON WAY TO SICILY

VENICE, March 31.—The royal yacht Hohenzollern, escorted by Italian and German battleships and many gondolas, is now in route for Sicily. It departed from Venice yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock with the German Emperor, the Empress, their children and the royal party on board.

ARBITRATION PACT VOIDED

Quincy Granite Manufacturers passed a vote declaring the agreement entered into between the Granite Manufacturers' Association and the Quincy Granite Cutters is void and that they could not recognize it. This decision is based upon the fact that William S. Alexander, a member of the committee which made the agreement is neither a member of the National Executive Board nor of the local Quincy Manufacturers' Association.

First International Vice-President James Duncan of Quincy said to a reporter of the AMERICAN: "The union will consider the agreement legal and binding. It was signed by ever ymember of the arbitration committee, making its decisions unanimous. And if there had been an opposing member in place of Mr. Alexander the verdict would still have stood."

Although many conferences have been held no new agreement has yet been reached between the cutters of Boston and the manufacturers. The old agreement expires today, and the new one calls for a increase of from $3.25 a day to a flat rate of 42 cents an hour or $3.36 a day.

SCORE HURT IN BUILDING CRASH

NEW YORK, March 31.—Two workmen were perhaps fatally hurt and half a score seriously injured in the collapse of the ceiling over the foyer of he old Madison Square Theatre in twenty-fourth street, west of Broadway today. The building is being torn down. Fifteen men were at work in the foyer when the heavy ceiling collapsed without a warning indication that might have given the men a chance to escape.

The fifteen men were completeley buried in the huge pile of choking debris that fell. Police and ambulances were summoned and the work of rescue was begun.

The first two men taken out were unconscious and were hurried to the New York Hospital. The others were not seriously hurt.

KILLS GIRL WITH POKER.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 31.—Grace Conrad, a farmer of Wayne, W. Va., to-day killed his six-year-old daughter by beating her with a poker, and fatally injured his wife with the same weapon. Jealousy is assigned as the cause. Conrad escaped.

Alteration Bargains

ALTERATIONS consist of tearing down the walls that divide our building . . . .

A 25 to 35 percent cut in prices on Easter Millinery, Suits, Coats, Waists, Gloves, Neckwear, etc., is one feature of the most sensational Alteration Sale in the history of Boston. All other lines of merchandise are likewise sacrificed to make room for the workmen. Dress materials on the main floor are celebrating the greatest price-cutting carnival of their career. Furnishings for Summer and City Homes, Hotels and Institutions are likewise offered at a tremendous sacrifice. Every floor from basement to roof is teeming with bargains never heard of before at this season of the year. On Sale beginning Wednesday morning.

FOR THIS WEEK ONLY, a great sale that will mark a new epoch in sensational bargain-giving yat before Easter. We're going smake the lowest prices Boston has ever known, going to sell sufficient merchandise to give us room to make the required alterations. Our ever-increasing business demands additional room, and the propsed alterations will add thousands of squre feet of floor space. Alterations will increase the size of at least thirtyapartments.

Mirandy on a Popular Heresy

By Dorothy Dix

"D E older night," remarked Mirandy, "like was a-settin' down tryin' to mend his shoe wid a awl an' a piece of string, an 'bout ev'y odder runch he'd jab de awl in, de ball of his thumb, an' de things he would say when dis accident took place warn't fittin' for no Christian woman an' innercent little chillen to hear.

"Kit sholy is a sorrowful sight to see a man tryin' to mend anyway, an' so I thought I'd sort o' lighten de gloom of de occasion by a little cheerful conversation.

"'Ike,' says I, 'did you read dat piece in de paper 'bout dat preacher man whut addressed de West Side Young Men's Christian Association on de subject of Matermony, an' told dem sportin' bachelors to go long an' git married, because two could live jest as cheap as one?'

"Dat's whut some champeen liar told me when I was a single man," 'spon's Ike, suckin' his thumb whar he done give hit anodder jab, an' sort of talkin' through his teeth, 'kaz in dem days, befo' I was fool enough to take his advice, I wo' patent leathers, whilst now my feet ain't got a speakin' acquaintance wid' nothin' but brogans.

"I tell you, Mirandy, dat dem confidence men dat goes around handin' out dope lak dat ought to be took up an' run in, for dey is playin' hit low down, tryin' to git po', ignorant, unmarried men, whut ain't never done dem no harm, into trouble.'

"'But,' says I, wid a sentimental look at him, an' I suttinly has got a languishin' eye when I wants to, 'is you forgot dat in de arithmatic of matermony dat one an' one makes one?'

"'Huh,' snorts Ike, 'hit comes to anywhar from free to leben in all de families dat I known, cordin' to whedder dere twins or not. Hit suttinly am a true word dat marriages is a lottery, because you don't know how many chillen you is gwine to have, nor how many of yo' wife's kin folks is gwine to come an' settle down on you.

"'De onliest man dat don't find dat he hit costs him mo' to live after he is married dan befo' he is married is de one dat has tied up wid a widder wid insurance money, or one dat has done had sense enough to grab off a ole maid dat is so tickled to have a husband dat she is willin' to take in washin' to support him.'

"'I reckon,' says I, 'dat dem folks dat figgers it out dat two kin live as cheap as one is a headin' off propanications on de couple livin' on love.'

"'Well, ef dey does,' right dar is whar dey drops dein rabbit's foot,' 'spon's Ike, 'for I has done took notice dat gittin' married don't make nobody lose deir appetite for pork chops an' onions, nor lakwise does hit keep a woman from honin' after de bargain counter, or a man sort of yearnin' to wear a red waistcoat.

"'It takes twice as much vittles to feed two mouths as hit does one, an' for times as much clothes to clothe two backs as hit does one, mo' especially when one of de backs has got to have longery shut waists put on hit, an' dat's whut makes me say dat dem folks whuts pushin' along matermony as a economy an' a git-rich-quick concern sholy is a-pilin' up trouble for dem dat listens to 'em.

Not Reflecting

"'NOW, I ain't a-wishin' to reflect on you, Mirandy, but ef I hadn't a been so loaded down to de guards wid fambly blessings, so to speak, dis think what a rich man I would have been!

"'Yassum, dat I would. I would a been a-rollin 'around in automobyles, an sportin a cane, an eatin' steak an liver ev'y day, ef I hadn't had nobody his losin' any sleep when de bank gits shaky?'

Br'er Simeon knows whut's de price of mo' dan one bonnet in de congregation.'

There's Br'er Jake

"AN' dere's Br'er Jake, whut's also dodged de altar. Whars' de houses dat he's done built wid de money he saved by stayin' single?

"Well," 'spon's Ike, 'Br'er Jake is of a sociable disposition dat loves company, an' bein' as how his room what he boards is little, an' scrooched up, an' 'le got clothes on all de cheers so dat dere ain't no place to set comfortable, an' furdemo' it is always cold in de Winter, an' hot in de Summer, so he spends his evenings at de corner saloon, an' quenscecontly mos' all of his pay envelopes jest sort of mashually drifts across de bar.

"'I don't see nobody waitin' around for Br'er Pete's afoces, eidder,' says I, 'yit Br'er Pete ain't had nobody to support but hisself.'

"'Dere you is wrong,' 'spon's Ike, 'ain't never had no chanst to git ahead any because he's been sort of a dumpin' ground for all his sister's po' relations' chillen an po' kin folk. Dey says dat dey felt free to call on Br'er Pete because he ain't got no wife an' chillen to take keer of, an' for dat reason he has spent his life a-totlin' for oddern.'

"'Well, 'spon's I, 'young got a fambly, an' yit youse got enough put by so dey won't have to pass around de hat for you when you is ole, an' youse got a cookin' stove, an' a pianny, an' a parlor eyarpet, an' fourteen quilts, an a lot of household plunder, an so maybe dat man dat says dat two kin live as well as one ain't a far off de track after all.'

"'Dat depends,' said Ike, 'on de kind of a woman a man marries. A wife is eidder a pass book to de savings bank or a ticket to de po' house.'

HISTORY'S DEBT TO MOTHERS OF HEROES

THE MOTHER OF JOHN RANDOLPH

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

JOHN RANDOLPH, of Roanoke! Even now, after the lapse of almost a century, there is magic in the name!

The tall, thin form; the sunken eyes, as black as jet and as sharp as daggers; the shrill voice; the long bony finger, which used to be pointed with such telling effect at his opponents; the eccentricities of dress and manner, and the withering invective that poured like hot lava from a volcano—The whole combination made the impression upon his age that can never be wiped out.

The United States of America has had but one John Randolph, and in all human probability it will never have another.

Grand old man he was, too, with all of his oddities and eccentricities, his weaknesses and shortcomings!

He was, first of all, honest, absolutely incorruptible, like the gallant knight of old, "without fear and without reproach."

No man ever bought John Randolph. No man ever attempted to buy him. Had the attempt been made the old statesman would have shot the would-be briber on the spot.

Was a Pure Patriot

HE was as pure a patriot as ever stood up under the flag, and his faithfulness to his country was mixed with no alloy of selfishness or greed.

He loved his country for its own sake, and upon the altar of its welfare he was always prepared to sacrifice himself to the last full measure of devotion.

And with what eloquence did he champion the truth and honor, its well-being and peace! There is no such eloquence at Washington to-day as that which rang through the Capitol when Randolph was there.

It was the eloquence not only of brain, but of character; not only of power, but of principle. Behind the voice so marvelous stood a man who could neither be scared nor cowed nor bribed from the conscientious performance of his duty.

John Randolph of Roanoke! Would that Washington could have three more like him for just one day.

In John Randolph's case we have another instance of the forgotten mother, another instance of the criminal indifference of the historian to the part that the soul mother plays in giving him the material for his work.

Of Rare Intelligence

RANDOLPH'S mother was a lady of rare intelligence, and "little Jack," as he was always called, found in her a servant and guide such as few children have ever found.

She was a beautiful woman, and the graces of her mind and the charms of her manner even exceeded her personal attractiveness.

To be brought within the orbit of Mrs. Randolph's influence was to become aware of the presence of an extraordinary personality. She attracted people, she impressed them, she made them recognize and remember her.

Randolph's father died when he was only two years old, and the whole burden of his education and training fell upon his mother. His fate could not have been left in worthier hands.

There was a fine library in the Randolph home, and in that library "little Jack" and his mother spent much of their time.

Trained Him in Oratory

RECOGNIZING the fact that her son possessed genius, and might, with application, become famous, the faithfully directed his early reading and saw to it that he acquired the power of logical thinking.

From an early date the fond mother saw that John had in him the making of a great orator, and, in addition to other things, she taught him the value of tone in speaking, the power of which he made such splendid use of in after years.

But few out of the thousands who, in turn, were awed and charmed by the great orator's eloquence realized that it was his mother who taught him how to speak so effectively, how to inflect his voice, how to melted the heart, or the indignation that set the heart ablaze.

It was at his mother's knee that Randolph learned something else of more importance to him than all the other things. She used to say to the boy over and over again, "Jack, always be manly. Always maintain your honor."

And Jack was not unfaithful to the mother's prayer. He lived and died a man. Many hated him, but not one could say aught against his rock-ribbed integrity of soul.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

GIVE HIM A LITTLE TIME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of eighteen and have known a young man of twenty-two for the past six months. I have learned to love this young man very dearly and think my love is reciprocated. What I want you to advise me in is this: Although he has called to see me about three or four times a week, brought me several pieces of jewelry and candy, as presents, there is no understanding between us at all. Do you think it proper for my mother to ask him what his intentions are, or do you think that he will tell me what they are as soon as he knows me a little better? He, as well as I, have heard several people talking about us, that is, asking whether we were engaged, etc. In fact, he was asked whether he was engaged to me by a friend of his, at which he just turned to a different subject, and with that he left the room. Do you think he is serious, as I do hate to be asked by everybody whether there is an understanding between us when I myself don't know, and have been told by an intimate friend of mine that he had acted the same way toward other girls as toward me; that he he showed them as much affection as he shows me. Should I drop him entirely or give him a chance?

DISTRESSED L. B.

DO not think of allowing your mother to ask him his intentions. That would place you in a very undesirable light. You have known him but a short time, and he may not know his own mind yet, and at the same time it is well to understand the situation. If he has treated other girls exactly as he is treating you and had no serious intentions he may act the same way in his friendship with you. Deny it emphatically when asked. If you are engaged, and it might be well to find aloof from him and discourage his attentions.

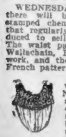
TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES



FILENE'S WILL OFFER on Wednesday, at 9:30 a. m., four lots of negligees. They have a lot of crepe dressing sacques in oriental designs of different styles, trimmed with contrasting shades of satin ribbon that have been reduced from $1.50 to 79 cents. Then a lot of long kimonos in dragon designs in navy, red and light blue, made of cotton challis, that have been reduced from $1.50 to 95 cents. Both of these are unusual bargains.

WEDNESDAY AT JOHN MURPHY SIEGEL & CO.'S there will be placed on sale a lot of stamped chemise and shirtwaist patterns that regularly sell for 50 cents each, reduced to sell for one day only 39 cents. The waist pattern is of fine nainsook, with Wallachian, French and coronation braid work, and the chemise is trimmed with French patterns.

IN THE MUSLIN UNDERwear department of Shepard Norwell's you will find about three dozen 50-inch corset covers that will sell for 25 cents each. In this lot are different style covers, made of fine nainsook and cambric, and trimmed with hamburg, torchon and Val. laces. These have been reduced because they are soiled and sizes are broken.

IN THE CORSET DEPARTMENT of R. A. Houston's to-morrow there will be a special tape girdle for 59 cents, regular $1 value. They are made of good quality tape, boned with non-rustable boning, and have strong hose supporters attached at front. These may be had in sizes from 18 to 28.

AN ODD LOT OF BOYS' double breasted suits, in sizes from eight years to sixteen years, will be found at R. H. White's, reduced from $2.98 to $1.98. They are made in medium and dark shades of gray, in smart stripes and checks, with straight knee; also a few knickerbocker suits.

YOU WILL FIND AT HOUGHTON & Dutton's to-morrow about two dozen boys' white blouses that have sold for $1 up to $2.50, but on account of the soiled they will be placed on sale Wednesday at 59 cents each to close the lot out. These blouses are made, some with deep sailor collar and turned back cuff, some with Norfolk, and others hamburg trimmed. These are very bargains at this price. The sizes run from three years to five years.

AT MacDONNELL'S TREMONT TEMple Store to-morrow they will have a special sale of "Merry Widow" shoes at 75 cents each. These shoes are made of fine quality Brussels net and are really worth 25 cents. They make a very dressy finish to a plain waist and can be had in black or white.

Woman's Vanity and the Bargain Habit

By Winifred Black

"WHAT do you publish so many fashion articles for?" said a man I know to the proprietor of a newspaper the other day. "Don't you think they encourage women to be vain?"

And the wife of that man I know reproved her dresses three times before she puts them in the rag bag, and she reads the fashion articles, word by word, to find out how to do it.

Encourage women in their vanity? Why, a woman with money to spend doesn't need encouragement; she wears them and lets the dressmaker do the worrying over the way they are made.

It's lots of fun for men to make jokes about bargain counters and bargain rushes, but if they had to buy their own clothes at marked-down sale or go without, they wouldn't think the "this style, $2.99—was $3" card was so awfully funny after all.

There may be some women who go to bargain rushes just for the fun of it. I don't know any of them.

If I had a husband who made fun of me for hunting bargains, I'd ask him to let me put him on an allowance of so much a week for himself and his office expenses and his cigars and his clothes and see whether he wouldn't get the bargain habit himself.

It's all very well to buy the best things at the best prices—when you have the price—and to let the tailor decide how to have your clothes made—when you pay the tailor's bill yourself and don't have to explain to the one who holds the purse strings why you ordered a suit that cost $5 more than the one in the window.

Fashion articles are not for vain women. Neither are bargain counters. Vain women haven't time to spend on either of these things; they're too busy running up bills to bother.

Whenever I see a woman cutting out a story on how to dress beautifully on 50 cents a week, I don't think she's vain; I know she's poor, or that her husband is stingy.

I wonder how many pairs of little shoes the vain woman the man I know was thinking about, when he spoke of that fashion article the other day, buys with the money she saves out of her made over dresses?

Cook Book Free For Choice Recipes

THE writer of every recipe printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 120 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve those recipe gems in good condition. BOSTON AMERICAN DAILY SHORT STORY

Making an Impression

THE young woman in the trailing blue gown and with the soulful blue eyes to match leaned forward prettily.

"I'm so glad to have this little opportunity to talk with you, Mr. Fletcher," she murmured. "Ever since we were introduced last week I've been so anxious to hear all about your great work. Doesn't all this frivolity tire one, though?" She motioned wearily toward the gay roomful of people.

"Why, I don't know," said the young man with the dark face, politely, "it seems rather nice to a fellow after the wilderness, you know. I haven't done anything out of the ordinary, and—"

"Oh, Mr. Fletcher," said the young woman, shaking her head at him. "That is just modesty. Why, I think it perfectly wonderful to go through all those countries in Africa among savages and all that!"

The thin young man coughed. "You see, I went by train most of the way," he explained. "And it was quite comfortable, don't the music beautiful?"

"But you must often have been in danger," persisted the young woman in blue. "It takes bravery and courage to go through so much."

"Oh, really," protested the thin young man. "I only did 500 miles of the wilderness itself, and the natives were peaceful."

"Makes Me Shudder"

"Why, they might have killed and—and eaten you!" said the young woman in horror-struck tones. "And you can speak of it as though it were nothing! It makes me shudder to think of it! Aren't you proud to have done such a thing?"

"Of course, you are too modest to say so, but you must realize, Mr. Fletcher, that no ordinary man could have gone through such an experience without being a perfect wreck when he came home! You must be a splendid athlete and strong!"

"Well, I don't know about that," said the thin young man. "Maybe I am. But I didn't even have fever, you know. Don't you want to dance this?"

"Just as you say," murmured the young woman, with a little sigh. "Only I am so interested in hearing all about your wonderful experiences! We women can't do such exciting things, you know, and when we do meet a man out of the ordinary it means a great deal. Most men have no minds except for money-making."

The thin young man looked perturbed. "But really," he explained, "one party went on a financial enterprise, not a pleasure trip. I am afraid you are giving me all sorts of good qualities that I don't possess."

The young woman shook her head. "Oh, was it your fame that did those wonderful things in rubber?" she asked in apparent surprise. "Well, I think it very noble of you to invest so much money over there where you knew you would get the benefit. I think that isn't philanthropy I'd like to know what is! I had no idea you were the Mr. Fletcher the newspapers have mentioned so often of late!"

"It was just an ordinary business deal," said the young man. "It is not often I meet a young woman who seems to take such an intelligent interest in a big project as you do. You must be very extraordinary!"

The young woman blushed faintly. "Oh, dear, no," she said. "Still, I always prefer the real things of life to this," with another wave of her hand toward the ballroom. "Only most men don't like to discuss it. If has been such a treat to talk to you, Mr. Fletcher. Of course, you had lots of unbreakable engagements and desperate experience over there?"

The thin young man wrinkled his brow in thought. "I don't know that one could call them engaged," he said. "One took the only frying pan we had on one occasion and a crocodile ate up my hat one day while I was asleep."

"How awful," breathed the young woman.

"Well," admitted the thin young man, "it really was awful, because the hat was on the river bank and I was in a tent 500 feet away."

"But it might have crawled over to the tent," shuddered the young woman. "It's just your bravery which makes you treat the affair so lightly. To think you went through all that!"

"Well, it wasn't like this, I must admit, said the young man, politely. Still—

"I should think not!" said the young woman, looking at him with eyes of admiration. "I do hope you are not going back there again to risk your life. You are a man of too much value to the community to be lost, Mr. Fletcher. And all hope to see lots of you, now you have come home."

"Very Kind of You"

The thin young man responded a little vaguely.

"Nothing would please me better," he said, "provided you include yourself among the lot of 'us' you mention."

"I should be so glad to have you call any time," the young woman blushed, said, with careful sweetness that was not at all coquettish.

"Next Thursday?" asked the thin young man.

"And sunshiny it would not be asking too much to let me take you out some time for a spin in my car?"

"Oh, that would be just kind of you!" agreed the young woman in bliss, as her next partner walked up and claimed her.

The thin young man watched her admiringly as she whirled away.

"Now, that's a most remarkable girl!" he murmured. "She seems to appreciate a fellow of his own qualities instead of a fellow who has had all sorts of things happen to have a lot of money. I never thought much about it before, but I believe it was my money she liked. She's a nice little girl!"

But in the ballroom the girl in blue agreed warmly with her partner's remark and gleamed triumphantly at the corner she had just quitted.

"I believe," she told herself, "I believe I have landed him!"

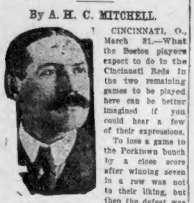
Umpire—"Silk" O'Loughlin.

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.



CINCINNATI, O., March 31.—What the Boston players expect to do to the Cincinnati Reds in the two remaining games to be played here can be better imagined if you could hear a few of their expressions.

To lose a game to the Porktown bunch by a close score after winning seven in a row was not to their liking, but then the defeat was so disgrace, and there is no telling what might have happened if the string had been played out instead of the umpire calling the contest at the end of the eighth inning.

Both teams were willing to call it off, as it could not have been a more disagreeable day for anything in the diamond line, but with the return of any kind of seasonable weather to-day there will be something doing from the Hub end of the scrimmage.

Manager McGuire is not going around with a long face because his charges came a cropper in the first game in this burg. The score tells the heroics of the contest, and there were factors which mitigated against the Red Sox showing their best form.

Team Arrived Late.

In the first places the team was several hours late in arriving in the city, and after a hurried lunch the players went immediately to the scene of the strife, half expecting that the game would be called off on account of the poor conditions.

The Cincinnati aggregation was ready for the American Leaguers, and with the influx of new youngster blood was decidedly shaky looking.

The alignment appeared much better than that seen last year when the team played on the South End grounds, and with Captain Charley Ganzel urging them on they put up a fast contest.

The big stumbling blocks in the way of the Red Sox were a young pitcher named Campbell from Harrisburg and Cooley, the old Holy Cross pitcher. This pair officiated in the box for the Reds, and McGuire's men walk the plank so far as hitting was concerned.

The slump in the batting of the team gave Director McGuire considerable food for reflection, and it is likely this department will come in for considerable attention from now on.

It looked easy with Uncle Cy in the box, and the big fellow wanted to make good in the first game he pitched after his forty-first birthday.

It was certainly not Cy's fault that the score went the wrong way, as he was on the job and pitched consistent ball.

The local Reds got busy the first time up. Miner Huggins, the little Rabbit, banging out a safety and Lobert following with one of the same variety. A punky hit by McElveey dribbled between Lord and Young and allowed Huggins to scamper over the plate with the first tally.

It was even up for a spasm in the sixth, when Boston drew one. Cooley could not find the plate and passed four men, forcing in the only run the boys could get.

In Cincie's half of the same inning a couple of hits and a wild throw by Wagner put the locals one to the good.

Burchell May Pitch.

To-day either Burchell or Morgan will pitch for Boston, while Rhoades and Ewing will try to repeat yesterday's victory for the Reds. "Cy" Young left last night for a three days' visit to Cleveland, and will return to Elkhart, Ind., to join the team on Saturday at Toledo.

Manager McGuire selected the men that Cy Young will take on the road while the regulars are filling dates. The second Red Sox team he made up as follows: Catcher, Carrigan and Pat Donohue, catchers; Young, Tannehill, Steele, Mains, pitchers; Carrick, Isports and Frank Donohue, on the bases; F. Donohue, shortstop; Carrick, Barrett and Sullivan, in the outfield.

The club will leave here for Indianapolis to-morrow night. The Regulars go to Toledo for games on Saturday and Sunday.

SHORTSTOP DEAD.

Forrest A. Crawford, shortstop of the Providence baseball club of last season and under contract with the club for the coming season, died at his home at Austin, Texas, on Sunday morning of blood poisoning, after a short illness.

HANK GETS A "THROWDOWN" FROM THE DOVES—By TAD.

(From the South End Banner.)

Hank Schroeder is back. The kind words we said concerning Mr. Jos Kelley of the Doves some days ago we wish to take back. He is no good. Talk about seeing a good ball player when he hits his lamps on one! The old fellow can't even see a hole through a ladder. He took South End's pride to Augusta with him a few weeks ago, and after Hank Schroeder made the hit of his life down South Mr. Kelley suddenly discovers that he has too many men, and Hank gets the "from ball."

How is it that the Augusta papers spoke so highly of his fielding? How is it that the players said he was the best fielder they ever saw? Why, when they were carted out high flies Hank got more of them and chased more lost balls than any man that was ever seen in Augusta. When the other players were tired of chasing the flies Hank stuck around awhile and sported with the cows came home. Can you expect any more of a fielder? He was such a hit that the players laughed themselves sick.

Mr. Kelley threw down Clarence Close-"clutch of Four Lovers" the same way. What can you expect from a pig but a grunt?

Mr. Kelley says that Hank struck out three times, that there were no bases and they needed a hit. We will admit that Hank was called out that day, but he was perfectly justified in declining the ball. He had two strikes and the next ball was aimed directly at the cupola. Not wishing to have his reason scattered to the four winds, Hank ducked. His motto has always been, "He sure you're right, then go ahead." He knew that ball wasn't right and ducked, but the umpire declared that it went straight over the plate. Now, Hank can see just as well as the next one, and if he says it wasn't coming over he knew as well as that umpire does.

Another guy who is in the field during a game he was chasing a fly and someone called, "Look out for the fence!" Naturally Hank shied, and taking his eyes off the ball looked for said fence. Result—discharge. If you haven't a pull you're a dead one.

Hank Schroeder will play short for the South End Winged Fingers this season. Mr. Kelley and his team can take a running jump at themselves.

ABE AND BAT IN FINE FETTLE FOR BOUT TONIGHT

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—A change of referees has been announced in connection with to-night's glove contest between Abe Attell and Harry Baker, and Tim Graney was the choice of the fighters in the first instance, but it was given out yesterday that Graney would be unable to preside owing to sickness in his family. The contestants met again last night, and Eddie Smith, the Oakland judge of featherwelts, was named in Graney's stead. The betting on the event at the Coliseum continues at even money.

It was reported from both camps yesterday that Abe and the Dane were as perfectly conditioned as good handling and conscientious work could make them. Neither says that when he steps on the weighing machine at 6 o'clock this evening he will be a pound or so under 122 pounds, the weight called for by the articles.

Attell, who has been trying to build up, said last night that he has given it up as a bad job.

"I don't believe I will be over 122½ pounds at weighing in time," said Attell. "Some of those who are supposed to be fairly close to Attell hinted that Abe was simply availing himself of the prize fighter's usual privilege, and that he was shading a little about his avoirdupois.

The impression is that Attell will scale 125 or 126 when he enters the ring and the other man will be about eight pounds heavier.

Nelson has picked Harry Foley for his chief second, and Eddie Madison and two others will lend a hand.

Attell will be looked after by his brother Eddie.

Sporting News Briefly Told

HOPPE GETS BIG LEAD.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Willie Hoppe increased his lead to 2,400 points over Jake Schaefer in two games of 400 points each, played here in a 2,400-point exhibition match at 182d balk line billiards. In the afternoon game Hoppe made 400 points to Schaefer's 240, and he ran out his string of 400 when the champion had 226. Hoppe's highest run was 78 and Schaefer's 47. The latter is in poor condition.

HARVARD'S FIRST GAME.

Coach Pieper is planning to put the Harvard baseball team in shape for the first real game of the season this afternoon, when a nine-inning game will be played between two picked teams. None of the first-string pitchers will play. Curtis, who has a badly sprained finger, will also be out of the game, and Carlisle will probably catch on the first team.

FOOTBALL AT YALE.

NEW HAVEN, March 31.—Captain Robert Burch, of the Yale football eleven, today issued a call for spring practice, therefying the candidates to report for daily work beginning next week at Yale Field. Captain Lucius Bigelow, of the eleven last Fall, will have charge of the work, which will include the usual punting and signal drill. It will continue three weeks.

SCHOOL CREWS PRACTICE.

Candidates for the crews of five schools had their first practice on the Charles River yesterday from the Boston Athletic Association house. The large number of candidates and the interest taken by the pupils promises that schoolboy rowing this season will be greater than ever before.

JIM BARRY IN HUB.

Accompanied by his manager, Teddy Murphy, Jim Barry arrived in town from Chicago last night and is out with a defi to meet anyone in the world, Joe Jeanette preferred. The latter he will meet on any terms and is willing to post a forfeit of $1,000 to strengthen his assertion.

HUGH DUFFY NOW CONTROLS THE GRAYS

PROVIDENCE, March 31.—A deal whereby Manager Duffy of the Providence baseball club secures full control of the club through the purchase of the interest of A. G. Doe has been completed, and the trouble that existed in their affairs since early last Fall has been brought to an end. The stock held by Mr. Doe was bought totally by Charles Larin of Boston and Manager Duffy. The former is a personal friend of Manager Duffy of many years standing, and the entire charge of the club has been given Duffy.

The matter was arranged at a conference, Mr. Doe making an offer that was thought reasonable. The stock was purchased and Mr. Conroy left for last Summer. A few days after the transfer of the stock to Larin the Instigation of John O'Donnell of Worcester, who bought Doe's interest in the Providence club attacking the stock transfer. The writ was served on Manager Duffy as treasurer of the Providence club attaching the stock of Mr. Doe in the club. The writ was served on

NATIONALISTS REJOICE IN REDMOND'S BIG VICTORY

BOSTON MEN DECLARE HOME RULE CAUSE ADVANCED BY COMMONS' VOTE.

Members of the United Irish League of Boston are to-day discussing the splendid victory achieved by the Irish Nationalist leader, John E. Redmond, who won what may consider a pronounced victory yesterday in procuring the adoption of a resolution moved by him "that in the opinion of this house a solution of Irish problem can only be obtained by giving the Irish people legislative and executive control of all purely Irish affairs."

That this is a forerunner of absolute and irrevocable Home Rule for the Irish people is the contention of prominent Irishmen of this city. They point to the fact that the English people are rapidly formulating an opinion that the only way in which the people of Ireland can be satisfied is by letting them have jurisdiction over their own affairs.

Dawn of New Era.

Especially are the Irish-Americans sure that there is a dawn of new era for the betterment of Ireland, for they point with pride to the stand taken by Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell, who came out squarely in support of Home Rule and declared there was not a man in the House of Commons but knew that sooner or later there would be a substantial modification in relations between Great Britain and Ireland.

The Right Reverend Monsignor Dennis O'Callaghan, pastor of St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, for many years identified with the Irish Nationalist movement in this city, in an interview with a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN said: "The English people are rapidly coming around to the right way of thinking. There is a tendency on their part in favor of Home Rule for the Irish people. The passage of the resolution introduced by Mr. Redmond yesterday is an evidence of it and ere long I hope to see the old land governed by the Irish."

Dr. Thomas J. Dillon, president of the Boston Council of the United Irish League, said: "As a result of the large majority which favored the resolution I am led to believe that Home Rule once more holds the field and is the paramount question.

"Mr. Redmond is to be congratulated on having carried his resolution through the House of Commons, considering that some of the most prominent members of the cabinet were looked upon as opposed to Home Rule. It is a hopeful sign that in the near future the Home Rule measure will be brought forward again by the government. It is up to the government to carry out what it has voted for. We in Boston look forward to Home Rule for Ireland within a short time."

"Glorious News."

John J. O'Callaghan, secretary of the United Irish League of America, who took such an active part in the convention called in Ireland last Summer to discuss the merits and demerits of the Birrell Home Rule bill, said in relation to the resolution:

"The adoption of Mr. Redmond's resolution commits the government irrevocably to forcing the issue of Home Rule to the front at the general election. Mr. Redmond has compelled the British Liberal party to face the subject in the same manner as did Gladstone. It is glorious news for the cause of Home Rule."

Dr. Henry V. McLaughlin, another prominent Irish Nationalist of Boston, who is president of the Brookline branch of the United Irish League, said:

"This news is encouraging, and gives hope for the cause of Home Rule. I did not expect that there would be such a large majority in favor of Mr. Redmond's resolution. It was, indeed, a very large vote."

GREAT SKIN CURE STIRS EUROPE

Instant relief and permanent cures have so invariably followed the use of an American prescription for the cure of skin diseases that European doctors, always zealous to lead in fields of medical knowledge, are still directing inquiries as to the ingredients of this external vegetable remedy.

The makers of the prescription, the D. D. D. Company of Chicago, are replying frankly to such European inquiries that this Eczema remedy is simply oil of wintergreen compounded with other vegetable ingredients of known healing power, such as thymol and glycerine.

Apparently no case of no matter how long standing can stand against this simple remedy, known as D. D. D. Prescription. Here is a typical letter from Mrs. E. Payne of East Pittsburg, Pa.: "I had a horrible breaking out on my legs and feet, and tried nearly all medicines and salves without result. The first bottle of D. D. D. helped me and I secured a complete cure. That was two years ago and I have had no trouble since."

We have investigated the merits of D. D. D. Prescription and believe it to be the best and quickest cure for skin diseases. At any rate, we positively know that it takes away the itch just as soon as you apply a few drops of the soothing liquid. Call for free booklet on care and nutrition of the skin and ask for a cake of D. D. D. soap.

THE most artistic corset creations of the season comprise the new Spring models of Olivia and American Lady Corsets which produce the requirements demanded by present fashions. The new snug hip effect is effectively and comfortably obtained in these corsets through employing only high grade fabrics and materials which ensure perfect fit and finish.

Olivia Corset
Model 90
$5.00 to $7.50

Model 90, Olivia (like illustration). Suitable for the stout and average figure, medium high bust, long hip and back, made of fine quality light weight coutil and fancy broche—boned throughout with walohn, which is just as pliable as whalebone, but superior on account of its wearing qualities. Six hose supporters attached front and sides, 5.00 and 7.50.

Model 854, American Lady (like illustration). A very fashionable garment for tall, slender and medium figures, high bust, long back and snug hip. It reduces the hip and gives those long, graceful lines—made of fine light weight coutil, boned throughout with walohn, which does not rust or break—hose supporters front and sides, 5.00.

American Lady
$5.00

Model 406. Same model as 410, but boned throughout with non-rustable boning instead of walohn, 1.50

Model 410, American Lady. New snug hip for medium and well developed figures—medium high bust, long hip and back, made of fine quality batiste, hose supporters front and sides. This is the only 2.50 Corset on the market boned throughout with walohn, which is guaranteed not to rust or break, 2.50.

Model 150, American Lady. Suitable for the well developed figure, high bust, long hip and back, made of white batiste and boned throughout with non-rustable boning—hose supporters attached front and sides, 2.50.

Miss Williams, expert corsetiere, will help select and fit the model best adapted to your figure. A full line of American Lady Corsets priced from $1 to $5.

OOD CHANCES FOR YOUNG MEN IN PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL--TANNEHILL

No. 6. Lives of Great Ball Players

Jesse Niles Tannehill was born in Dayton, Ky., across the Ohio River from Cincinnati, on July 14, 1875.

"I always wanted to pitch from the first time I ever handled a baseball," said the famous left-hander in talking of his career on the diamond. "And I have never been anything but a pitcher except for a few games now and then as a fair right field in case of emergency. I pitched for my school club in Dayton, and next year I did the pitching for the Cincinnati University team, although I was not a student at the university. I got money for it, too. That's the way they do things in those days. My work with the collegians attracted the attention of the management of the Reds, and I was signed by Cincinnati in 1894. I was only with this team one month and played seven games. I didn't look good enough to fast company so I was turned loose.

"I then caught on with the Frankfort, Ky., club and then barnstormed around the Blue Grass country for the balance of the Summer. In 1895 I was signed by the Richmond (Va.) club and played the entire season. I could sting the ball pretty well and the manager used me as a right fielder when I wasn't pitching. In 1897 I joined the Pittsburgh club, remained there until just before the close of the season of 1902. Cincinnati then wanted me again, and I never left the team of the league with ten days' pay. When Cincinnati tried to sign me Boston jumped to the American League and the next year I was with the Chicago team, being Tom Hughes, and I have been with Boston since.

BY JESSE TANNEHILL.

"In some respects I believe ball playing is an excellent career for a young man. If he saves his money and invests it well he ought to be able to have a snug sum to his credit by the time his usefulness as a ball player is over. I wouldn't advise any young man to take up baseball professionally, however, unless he takes it seriously and gives his money.

"I was a very young man when I earned my first dollar as a pitcher. I could make more money at it than I could make as a coal heaver, which I tried on as a helping hand, which I also tried and I suppose that is why I stuck to baseball. I have no more opposition, however, aside from baseball and that is to go through pitching. I will have to live on baseball money as a player, I own some real estate and have made other investments and have made many valuable friends.

"When I am through playing ball I will have to plan out a career for myself, but I have no plans at present. Where I think baseball helped a young man is exemplified in the cases of Harry Gessler and Dennis Sullivan of the Boston club. They were both able, while playing baseball to pursue their studies in medicine. Gessler has passed his examination and is qualified to practice medicine whenever he gets through playing ball. Sullivan is also studying as a medical college and will shortly graduate. But unless a young man has a definite object in view I should not advise him to take up baseball, but at that it all depends on circumstances.

The next article will be on Claude Ritchey, the Dover second baseman.

LONGBOAT TO COMPETE DESPITE ACTION OF A.A.A.U.

TORONTO, March 31.—Tom Longboat, the famous Indian runner, is not only going to the Olympic games under the American Union, but is also to be asked to perform a feat, which, if he succeeds, will be the greatest one the athletic world ever saw.

Tom Flanagan stated yesterday that he would, the Canadian Olympic committee willing, enter Longboat in the mile and five-mile events, as well in the Marathon. The two shorter races will be held earlier in the season than the Marathon, the latter, which is down for July 26, and he thinks that the shorter distance will put the Indian on edge for the twenty-five-mile event.

If the Onondaga reaches the speed mark expected of him by his trainer, Longboat will beat the world at any distance up to twenty-five miles. And if he can win all these three events he certainly must be considered as an athlete who will make England has long since made a specialty of five-mile runners, and they are as thick as hops, and decidedly handy at that distance, in every country in the world has crack milers, and Canada will have a team that will take a beating, so that if Longboat could even make a showing in the two shorter races he would be doing remarkable work. Even if he can win he will be taken with the Marathon, toward which he will be specially pointing, but if there is a day or two between he will try for both.

Tom Flanagan proposes to sail from Canada alone with the Indian about May 10. This will give him two full months in Europe before the Marathon. He proposes about three weeks before this to feature every one of the Olympic games, to hold a trial race at this point in July 26, and he thinks that the shorter distance will put the Indian on edge for the twenty-five-mile event.

If the Onondaga reaches the speed mark expected of him by his trainer, Longboat will beat the world at any distance up to twenty-five miles. And if he can win all these three events he certainly must be considered as an athlete who will make England has long since made a specialty of five-mile runners, and they are as thick as

PITCHERS WILL CHEW LICORICE FOR GLOSS BALL

The Detroit twirlers haven't been near the spit practice yet to discuss the new rule prohibiting the pitcher from disfiguring the ball, but one of them has a man's experience in a league whefe such rule has been in force. This man is Summers.

"I used Hoarlce," says Summers. "I'd roll up my sleeve with a large chew of tobacco—I hate its taste, but I had to sacrifice my palate in the good of the cause—and I'd simply soak my glove before they threw the new ball over to the catcher. Then my glove would make it as black as coal and another rub would take the gloss off the ball.

Summers's story of the origin of the disfigured ball rule in the American Association is new. The rule was framed to circumvent a trick of the spit ball pitchers of Cleveland, but then with Columbus.

Heine used to get wonderful results out of a new ball with only one rub on the mud and a few seconds. One day a visiting pitcher noticed the rub Heine got and the bare spot which Heine had employed. He was surprised at the handiness of the office.

It was promptly investigated.

After he had kicked round a while he found that there was a lot of licorice in the soil, thus amply explaining the wonderful curves Heine got, which Barger would involve a new and supposedly glosse ball.

HORSEMEN MIGHT UNITE

EVIDENCE, March 31.—Now that the Wrtucket Driving Club is a thing of st and the project of a track out Avenue gone up in the air, could hear that there might be an Inter-City Club formed, with horsemen of and Pawtucket uniting. If this one the interest in horse racing be intensified and competition and the two cities made more keen. ited horsemen, if desiring, would have ample opportunity t ed to race to go down to Hills ers, and there they could hold exciting races which would far exceed which has taken place heretofore me.

Dynamite's Stupid, Criminal Argument

Vigilance, Education, Greater Respect for the Rights of the Poor Are Essentials in the Fight Against It

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

On Saturday an ignorant man, planning wholesale murder for revenge, killed a bystander and maimed himself in Union Square, New York.

The man had evidently read the literature of criminal anarchist writers, and he may have been regularly affiliated with some anarchist organization, although the leaders in the anarchist movement repudiate him, as is their custom.

It is fortunate that this attempt at wholesale murder was not more effective, that New York does not record a repetition of the anarchist outrage in Chicago, in which a number of policemen lost their lives.

How is anarchy which advocates cowardly murder to be fought by civilization? The question is most complicated. It would be easy to fight anarchy in such a way as to multiply the number of anarchists by ten and the number of outrages by a hundred inside of six months. Russian methods HERE would give just such results as they give in Russia.

Civilization must not be frightened or act with the illegal passion of the frightened man. Civilized society cannot afford, in fighting anarchy, to imitate the anarchists. That is what Russia does. The Russians catch a nihilist and torture him or her in prison. The friends of the man or woman tortured commit fresh murders, there is more torturing of prisoners, and so it goes, an endless chain.

Here we must fight anarchy as sanely and coolly as we should fight the plague.

The PREACHING of anarchistic violence should be stopped, to begin with—not so much by condemnation in advance, by forbidding meetings, etc., as by REPORTING THE MEETINGS AND PUTTING IN JAIL FOR AT LEAST TEN YEARS ANY CRIMINAL ADVOCATING MURDER OR PHYSICAL VIOLENCE OF ANY KIND.

The right to peaceable assembly and to free speech must be protected. But FREE SPEECH has nothing to do with advocacy of murder, and if our law does not make that clear, the law should be changed.

The man who advocates murder is often more dangerous than he who discharges a deadly weapon—one speech by a cowardly and unscrupulous advocate of violence may stir up in ignorant, passionate, deeply hating minds the murderous determination and resolution of which the cowardly speaker would be utterly incapable.

No man or woman should be permitted to preach violence. Let who will advocate changes in government—we need and shall have MANY changes. And let who will advocate economical reforms, changes in property laws. No man or woman, however, should be permitted to advocate murder, and the militant anarchist DOES advocate murder, and seeks to make his tools of weak, unbalanced men. Such advocates of violence should be imprisoned, unless some better plan can be devised.

Perhaps it would be a good idea to provide some quiet island for the anarchists, putting them there at their own request, or as fast as they might be LEGALLY CONVICTED of preaching violence. Let them have on the island their own kind of government, which is NO government. Let them try life without any protection for property except "innate honesty," and let them TRY LIFE WITHOUT CIVILIZATION'S PROTECTION.

They would soon learn that civilization, imperfect though it be, has certain good points. When the strongest, fattest anarchist declined to work and ordered the unprotected weak to work for him—like an anarchist Congo savage or an anarchist trust owner—the inhabitants of the Happy Anarchistic Isle would soon have enough of their experiment.

When children were born and there were no laws to protect the young girls, no compulsory public education for the boys—nothing but force, argument and dynamite—the anarchistic experiment would be complete.

Take a thousand enthusiastic anarchists, put them on such an island, supply them liberally with knives, dynamite, pistols, etc.; have only themselves on the island, with a few gunboats patrolling to prevent their escape—how long would they be happy?

How long would it be before Miss Goldman and Mr. Berkman and the other "enthusiastic leaders" would come running down to the shore, begging to be taken away and put in some well-managed, orderly, WELL-GOVERNED penitentiary.

To give the anarchists what they dream of, by sentencing them to live in a country without government, might effect a cure.

A more immediate necessity is supervision—if it be possible—of the manufacture and ownership of explosives. A man having in his possession any high explosive, and unable to account for it, should be punished —after trial by jury—as though guilty of assault with intent to kill.

Secret anarchist meetings and secret anarchist propaganda should be watched as carefully as official intelligence may allow. Great care should be taken, above all, to refrain from foolish excitement, from making artificial heroes of anarchist leaders—they delight in well-advertised "persecution," as long as it does not land them in jail.

...ity among citizens, justice and good conduct among the police ...g with the poor and unfortunate, are most important. Anarchy ...symptom of discontent. The wisdom that regulates our gradual ...ward civilization has provided for all difficulties, big and

...y has solved bigger problems than anarchy, with its occa...rs and constant talking. We have come up through slavery, ...erstition, public official torture, public wholesale burning ...in the name of the divinity, public burning of old women ...of witchcraft. We are even now grappling with plutocratic ...by money, and the little problem of anarchy, with its few ...ly unimportant little crimes, is not going to wreck

...ow one single Trust, the Milk Trust, to kill thousands of ...very year—and we do not get excited. We need not shiver ...r because the anarchist happens to be a little more melodramatic ...lling than the Milk, or Ice, or Beef Trust. We ought to attend ...em all, CALMLY.

The anarchist's own INSTINCT OF SELF-PRESERVATION will ...e the anarchist problem in the long run, as it has solved many others.

...GLE TAX IN NEW ZEALAND

...r BOSTON AMERICAN:

...portant public documents are just at ...d from New Zealand. They are the of... returns for 1907 made to Parliament ...e valuer-general relating to the "adop... of the rating-on-land-value system" ...r the local option act of 1896. ...ending with Palmerston North, March, ...ing and ending with Roslyn, August, ...eighty-four districts or boroughs ...d themselves of this local option and ...ed the system of raising all revenue ...al purposes from land values alone—..., by the single tax pure and simple. ...e aggregate number of votes cast in ...eighty-four polls was: For adoption, ...against adoption, 5,466; plurality ...4,708. The largest number of ...ast any one poll was in the city of ...,852, the next largest in it... ...o average for the eighty-four boroughs was 224, indicating an average population of perhaps 1,000 to 1,500.

"Rescinding polls," as provided for in the original act, have been held in five out of the eighty-four districts, one in 1902, two in 1904 and two in 1906. The total number of votes cast at the rescinding was 628, against rescinding 1,291. Thus in these five cases, after a practical test of nearly five years, the ratifyin' vote showed a falling off of but 6 per cent from the original majority by which the system was first adopted.

The above figures will have interest for many people who, although they may not lay great emphasis upon results in that agricultural and distant state of only about a million people, nevertheless are watching closely for the outcome of New Zealand's experiments in local option in taxation.

THE WHITE HOUSE GAZETTE

WEX JONES—EDITOR.

Vol. I. Washington, Monday—March 30, 1908. No. 12.

EDITORIAL

A French scientist says that snails snore. Look for him that he is out of reach of the White House.

P. S.—And of the Philadelphians.

My fleet, in pursuance of my policies, will go around my world. So far it has created a very favorable impression of us in the various ports it has visited.

In The Editor's next message to Congress he will order:

(1) A national park for the preservation of the stork.

This is a highly important measure, and will preserve this extremely interesting bird for the benefit of posterity.

(2) An appropriation of $23,000,000,000 to stock the White House grounds with grizzlies and gorillas.

Necessary to keep our legislators from becoming mollycoddles and to keep us in shooting practice.

(3) An amendment to the Constitution providing that the President shall appoint his successor.

I will do this anyway, but Taft might weaken when it comes to his turn.

(4) A currency bill, tariff revision, a new deal—as improvement on the old square one—and a number of other things.

Trifles, but necessary to satisfy my friends.

For President—
CHARLES EVANS HUGHES,
"The Whiskered Welsh Rabbit."

HOME NOTES

To scramble eggs—drop 3 fresh eggs out of a third-story window. If anyone is passing, close the window quickly and go out the back way.

C. W. Fairbanks—We cannot give recipes for cocktails in three columns.

If the child will not sleep, read it one of the Presidential messages. (They can be purchased at this office.)

Many attractive articles are advertised in the stores this week. Have you seen the square deals at 25 cents, marked down from $2.50?

For President (of Minnesota),
JOHN A. JOHNSON.

IDEAL CANDIDATE

"Rollicking Charley" Is Just the Man Country Needs.

By C. B. Quincy.

Charles Warren Fairbanks, or, as he is better known, "Rollicking Charley," looks like a sure winner in the Presidential race.

Charley has been a consistent Republican ever since he was born, and is without doubt the longest pull in the party.

While he has always been one of the boys, Charley is never lacking when it comes to great deeds. The whole country was thrilled by his daring wade to rescue a waitress who was getting her feet wet on the dump grass.

Enemies have fabricated a base story that Charley put a cherry in a dry Martini cocktail. The peculiar horror of such an act makes the story ill of knowed refutation. His innate conservatism forbids Charley to brand the statement as a "short and ugly," but among friends he frequently refers to it as a "brief and homely."

Rollicking Charley Fairbanks stands for a good time for everybody and olives in the country's cocktails. He will be renominated unanimously.—[Advt.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir—If you get a second elective term (copyright, 1907, by Jonathan Bourne), I trust you will not forget the original second elective term (copyright, 1907, by Jonathan Bourne) man. I don't like my name to appear in connection with the second elective term (copyright, 1907, by Jonathan Bourne) movement as advertising is very distasteful to me.

JONATHAN BOURNE.

Sir—I have cancelled my subscription to the Gazette. Until you write a vigorous editorial denouncing a third term for any President I shall not see your paper again.

W. J. BRYAN.

[We shall be glad to ... this if our correspondent will write an equally vigorous editorial in the Commoner denouncing a third candidacy for any would-be President.—Ed.]

Sir—With reference to your "new deal" message, please tell me what is your opinion. Will be the new deal in VOTES?

[For information on this topic address Jonathan Bourne, U. S. Senate.—Ed.]

Sir—Could you crack Hackenschmidt's ribs?

HIGH SCHOOL BOY.

[What school do you attend? You display an amazing lack of knowledge about the country's greatmen.—Ed.]

Sir—Does an egoplant produce hen fruit? If not, why?
